

PROGRAMME

First day: after having stocked the boat with food and formalities for departure from Argentina to Ushuaia, departure for Puerto Williams on the Chilean shore of the Beagle Channel (3 hours of navigation).

Entry formalities in Chile and night at Micalvi (along with a stranded cargo ship serving as a yacht club bar, very nice)

PROGRAMME

Second day, departure from Puerto Williams to Lennox Island, anchorage for the night

Third day, departure from Lennox Island towards the Wollaston archipelago, anchorage at Caleta Martial near the famous Cape Horn

PROGRAMME

Fourth day, passage of Cape Horn and route to the Antarctic Peninsula (4 days at sea)

PROGRAMME

Eighth day, arrival on the Antarctic Peninsula and anchorage in Melchior Harbor for a well-deserved rest

PROGRAMME

Eleventh day, anchorage in Paradise Bay, visit to the Chilean scientific base

Thirteenth day, anchorage at Lockroy port, visit to the English scientific base

PROGRAMME

Fifteenth day, anchorage at Pleneau Island

Seventeenth day, anchorage in Vernadsky, visit to the Ukrainian scientific base

PROGRAMME

Day 19, return to Paradise Bay

PROGRAMME

Twenty-first day, anchorage in Cuverville

Twenty-third day, anchorage in Enterprise Bay

PROGRAMME

Twenty-fourth day, anchorage in Melchior while waiting for the return weather window

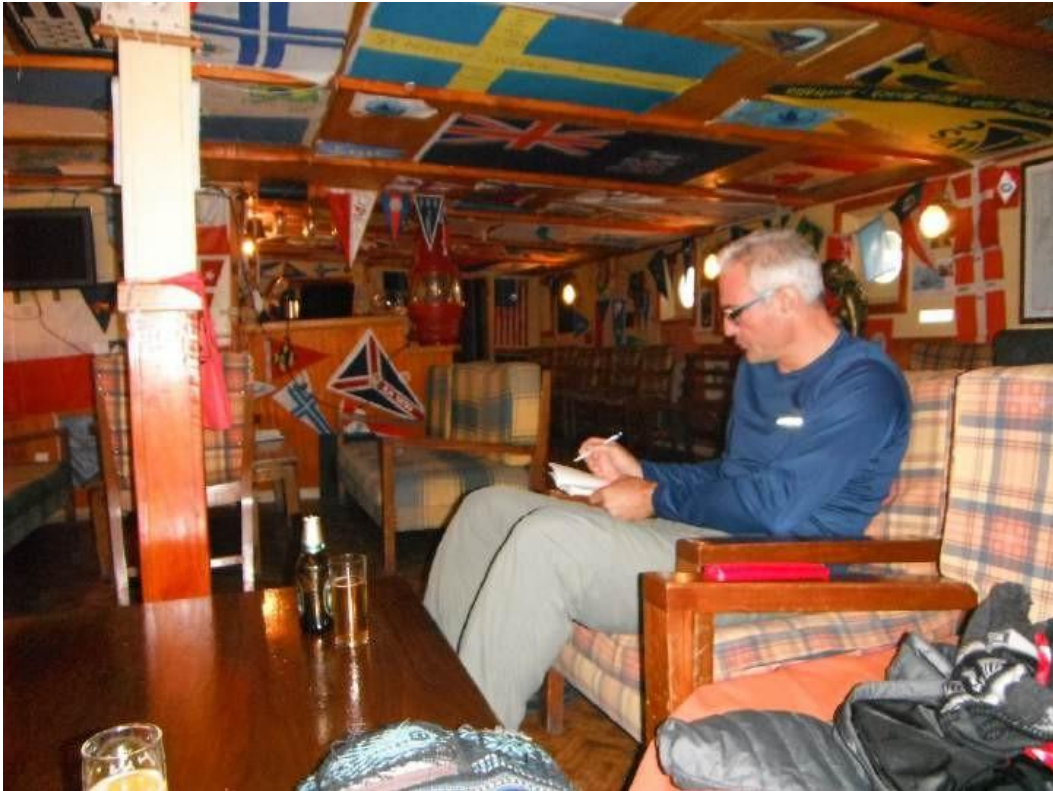

Twenty-eighth day, after four days at sea, anchorage at Lennox Island

PROGRAMME

Twenty-ninth day, exit formalities from Chile to Puerto Williams

PROGRAMME

Thirtieth day, return to Ushuaia in the evening and Argentinian formalities on the thirty-first, before your departure.

This program is an overview of what we can do, but weather and ice conditions can vary considerably.

Above all, it is an expedition which contains a certain element of the unknown, which is also what makes it the spice of the adventure.

Individual accident and repatriation insurance is mandatory with a company of your choice.

For your return ticket, it is strongly recommended to take an exchangeable or refundable option, because bad weather conditions may force us to postpone the return from the Antarctic Peninsula and thus our arrival in Ushuaia (see general conditions of the site).